COOL NIGHTS HAMPER

LATE CROPS, SAYS THE

STATE MARKET BUREAU

Movement of Locally Grown Potatoes to Market Will Be Lighter From Now On.

Harrisburg, Oct. 6.—The bureau of Markets of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture sends out the following forecast regarding the supplies of near by fruits and vegetables for the present week.

The potato cabbage celery and grape harvests continue in full force. The bulk of these crops will not be marketed immediately but will be stored away for winter use. Unless there is more demand for other than strictly fancy apples at this time much fruit will waste in the orchards. Only a part of the apple crop can be sold as choice or fancy fruit and if there is no demand for the balance it will not be marketed. Potatoes or a few skin blemishes do not lessen the food value of the fruit.

Many housewives will be glad to hear that some quinces and the varieties of apples such as the Red Delicious will be available in moderate quantities this week. A few of the late near by peaches still are to be found on some markets.

Most cities will have a good supply of late peaches and late sweet corn, onions, squash, potatoes and other root crops. The cool nights even though not accompanied by killing frosts are retarding the development of the late vegetables. The movement to market of all locally grown perishable products will be considerably lighter from now on.

Don't let this report go to waste because you cannot tell what is to be expected in the future. It can be successful without a doubt. It can be successful without a doubt. It can be successful without a doubt.

The fruit will not spoil but it will not have quite a firm flavor and color as in the past. It is a disappointment to the consumer.

"TEAM WORK" AMONG THE CHURCHES.

To work out a "thorough-going plan of cooperation between the evangelical churches in North America in their educational and missionary programs at home and abroad," is the task to which the Interchurch World Movement is to be addressed. It is a large undertaking but one that the needs of the times demand be entered upon as a means of better adapting the principles and practices of cooperative effort to the new problems which take up the burden of helping to re-make the world.

The purpose of the movement is not the elimination of denominationalism, much as the fact is to be deplored that the 110,000,000 Protestant church members of the United States are divided and sub-divided into 170 different sects, with churches here and there all over the land, often overlapping or duplicating, and sometimes antagonizing each other's efforts in certain communities. It is realized, however, that "these denominations have many features in common" that they "have the same goal," but it is believed more and more that only by a united and cooperative effort can they exert their greatest influence.

With a view to ascertaining the conditions in different communities with respect to church equipment by which they are being served—whether insufficient to supply the needs of the population, or so much in excess of those needs that they have assumed a competitive character—a complete survey is to be made, county by county. Fayette county constitutes a district and an organization, under the leadership of a Connelville pastor, is to conduct the survey.

When the exact facts have been thus ascertained "each community and region will be appraised and the whole task of the church put in clear light and proper proportion." In other words, there is to be what might be termed a "stock taking" of the religious plant and equipment of the whole country in order that the leaks and wastes in administration of the enterprise may be detected and stopped. With this information available it will be possible to affect a better distribution of church work so that the existing disproportion or duplication in one community and unengaged communities elsewhere will be remedied.

In short, it is intended to apply an efficient and coordinated plan to the solution of the great problems which it is the mission and duty of the churches as a collective body to solve. The success or failure of the whole effort will depend upon the cooperation, or lack of it, among the churches. The results will prove whether they are less selfish in their desire to further the Kingdom of Christ on earth through "team work" than they are anxious to further their individual church or denominational interests by their own unaided efforts.

EVASION, NOT DISAVOWAL.

When Strike Leader Foster was before the Senate committee which is investigating the steel strike, Senator McKellar read from Foster's book on "Syndicalism" this significant passage:

"The Syndicalist is unscrupulous in his choice of weapons. He allows no consideration for legality, religion, patriotism, honor or duty to stand in his way of advocating effective tactics."

"Do still believe in that?" Senator McKellar asked Foster.

"If you put those terms in quotation marks, I say yes," Foster replied.

"What do you mean, by quotation marks?"

"All of those terms are relative terms," said Foster. "In Pittsburgh the newspapers now say it is patriotism for citizens to act as rebels. I mean that this is the quotation of some one's conception of those particular things."

The evasive character of this answer, like all others given to questions touching his views and attitude on "Syndicalism," mean nothing less than that Foster refuses to disavow the revolutionary doctrines by which he would bring about "abolition of the wage system," "socialization of industry," and the "destruction of capital and government."

"Some one's conception of those particular things" is very plainly Foster's conception.

The settlement of the British railroad strike is another proof that workers in industry are not as ready or willing to be stampeded into revolution and anarchy as some of the apostles of the direct action believe.

The public will be gratified at the later and more cheering news from the White House.

More Pat Morans, Not Agitators, Wanted

Richard Spillane in Philadelphia Ledger.

One of the weaknesses in the arguments of labor men is that they over-stress the worth of the hand worker and minimize the importance of the brain worker.

They do not seem to appreciate that it is through the combination of the two working in harmony and animated by the same spirit that the two profit the most and the best results are obtained.

A thousand examples might be given to illustrate the truth of this statement, but one that is furnished in the field of sport and engages the attention of the whole nation today will serve.

If you are a Philadelphia fan you know Pat Moran. He was a catcher on various big league teams and particularly in this city. He was not a catcher par excellence, but he was a brainy player and a patient one. He had the great gifts of good nature, a smiling eye and the spirit that instills confidence in persons who lack that quality. When he no longer was fitted to be a good catcher he became a manager. What he did with the Philadelphia National League team is history. Then a gentleman who did not know his worth let him go. He was engaged by the New York club as a coach. McGraw permitted him to accept the management of the Cincinnati club.

No one had ever taken the Cincinnati club seriously. Players and managers have been great elsewhere, but when they went to Cincinnati they withered. Never had Cincinnati won a pennant. Never had it such a piebald lot of players as at the beginning of this season. The city has been the morgue of managerial hopes. It seemed as if Pat Moran was another victim cast on the altar of blighted hope.

But Pat Moran has the magical quality we term leadership. He applied it to that team of fledglings, has been and never was. He had some players whose natural abilities had been dulled by bad habits or unintelligent and unsympathetic handling. He studied his men. He won their esteem and confidence of each and all of them. He did not scold or browbeat. He sufficed the weak-kneed and encouraged the ambitions. Somehow he got men to do better than they did before. Somehow he got each one to think more of the team and less of the individual. Somehow he got coordination and unity of effort.

And then a miracle, as the baseball writers term it, happened. Cincinnati developed a spirit no team of that city ever had displayed. It had shown no particular worth in anti-season games, but when the regular season opened it surprised the natives.

It won game after game. Occasionally it met defeat, but only to come back with greater courage. The wise persons said the team could not hold the pace, but would "crack" under the strain. When the time for "cracking" came it slaughtered the Giants. It kept on its victorious course until it won the pennant.

And now it is battling with the champions of the American League for the world's championship. Again it is confounded the students of the game by winning the first two contests in sensational style.

The "dope," as it is termed, shows the Cincinnati players, man for man, are inferior to the Chicagoans, except in one instance.

And yet Cincinnati wins. Today the treasury of the Cincinnati club is fat with profits.

Today the players of the Cincinnati team have prospects of a golden harvest by reason of the season's triumph. And all because a man with brains and ability, a man who knows how to handle men, has managed the club.

How can you measure the money value of a man like Pat Moran?

Scattered through industrial establishments here and there through the country are "Pat Morans" who make men better, happier, more useful by having pride in their tasks, knowing the joy of achievement, working as a team should work, in union, harmony, and good will. The men benefit. The employers benefit. The nation benefits.

The whole world today is a good deal like the Cincinnati team used to be—torn by doubt, rent by internal strife, lacking in confidence, lacking in intelligent leadership and lacking in team work.

In every branch and department it wants not agitators, but more of the men like Pat Moran.

There is no joy the heart of man may crave
Our Plag in beauty does not wave,
No dream of future greatness which he holds
But can be won beneath its radiant folds.

Earth has no need of fairer day
Than this.
No fairer new can offer such bliss.
Our is a flag which all men can respect.
Rematch its folds all men can stand
It does.
Chide high to fame and write upon
Its glorious records of their very souls.

There is no honest joy beneath God's stars
When man can say to him the flag denies.
And all those tongues wherever they may be
Who would defame the banner of the Free.

Without the hands that seek to tear
It down,
And from the brow of freedom snatch
The crown!
Teach them to know that here they
In beauty way the eagle they seek
To gain;
Teach all who live beneath its splendid folds
To catch the vision of the joy it holds.

CHURCH OF GOD ACCEPTS WOMAN AS A MINISTER

Miss Anna Edwards of Mt. Pleasant is Ordained by Eldership Sunday.

WAS AN UNUSAL PROCEEDING

Mount Pleasant Township High School Defeated East Huntingdon Township High School By Score of 20 to 0 In Hard-Fought Game; Interest High.

Special to The Courier.

MT. PLEASANT, Oct. 5.—On Saturday morning the Western Pennsylvania Eldership, in session here, took up routine business with a report of the standing committee that a greater volume of business than usual was done through the Eldership during the past year. A standing committee for another year was elected as follows: Chairman, Rev. Sylvester Fulmer of this place, the Rev. T. S. Woods of Latrobe and the Rev. John W. Whistler of West Newton. The report took up the entire morning session.

At the afternoon session the report on the state of religion was given. The report stated that there is a great deal of indifference generally concerning the churches and religion but that the Churches of God have not felt this as keenly as some other denominations.

Following this the committee on ordination announced the name of two candidates to be ordained. They were Rev. J. D. Patterson of Templeton and Miss Anna Edwards of Mt. Pleasant.

The committee on ordination, Rev. Sylvester Fulmer, Rev. John W. Whistler and Rev. J. W. St. Clair of Grove City announced that it was unusual to ordain a woman but that this would be done. Miss Edwards for the past year has been filling a pulpit at the Alverton Church of God.

At the evening service the Rev. A. G. Herr of Franklin preached the sermon. Sunday morning the preaching of the morning service by the Rev. John W. Whistler, Rev. Sylvester Fulmer, conducted the ordination services for J. D. Patterson and for Miss Anna Edwards. Joseph Seckley of Carnegie, missionary among foreign speaking people, was given a licentiate certificate.

Yesterday afternoon a laymen's meeting was conducted headed by the president, Mr. W. L. Stevens of Pittsburgh.

Last evening Rev. T. S. Woods of Latrobe and Rev. T. C. Eakin had charge of the services which included communion and the washing of the saints' feet.

Special music was furnished yesterday morning by Mrs. J. L. Ruth and Miss Lucy Sellers and the choir and in the evening by J. L. Ruth and the choir.

The visitors at the eldership have outnumbered that of most any other Eldership ever held. The church has been packed at each meeting.

The Eldership will continue today.

East Huntingdon Defeat. In a game closely contested throughout the Mt. Pleasant Township High school football team defeated the East Huntingdon Township high school by a score of 20 to 0. The game was played on the Mt. Pleasant Township High athletic field and was witnessed by a large crowd.

The Mt. Pleasant Township scored their first touchdown in the first quarter, when Newell received a forward pass from Mallia on the East Huntingdon 20 yard line, and crossed the goal line at the corner of the field. Mt. Pleasant failed on the punt out. The second touchdown came in the second quarter from Mallia's 30 yard run around left end, Evans kicked the goal. The last score was in the fourth period when the ball bounded from Motsey's hands over the goal line, where Baker fell on it for a touchdown. Evans again kicked goal. Interest in the game was at fever heat because of the intense rivalry between the opposing schools. The lineup was as follows:

SCHOOL CHILDREN TO PARTICIPATE IN MEMORIAL CAMPAIGN

Commemorative Exercises Planned for October 27, "Roosevelt Day."

Special to The Courier.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—School children all over the country will take an active part in the memorial campaign to Theodore Roosevelt, which will be held during the week of October 20-27, and which will have its culmination on the last mentioned date, October 27th. Under the auspices of the Roosevelt Memorial association, commemorative exercises are to be held in schools in all the states, in several of which October 27 has already been named by the educational authorities as "Roosevelt Day."

Roosevelt was particularly the advocate and friend of children. It was but natural that his lifelong interest and zest in games and outdoor sports of all kinds, his fame in great hunting exploits, his active participation in one of our foreign wars, and his picturesque and forceful personality should have made him a particularly appealing figure to American youth.

To millions of boys and girls in this country he was a hero. In arranging for commemorative exercises in the schools—public, private and parochial—it is particularly the purpose of the Roosevelt Memorial association to perpetuate the inspiration and stimulus of his life upon the lives of the boys and girls of the United States, to impress on them the example of his characteristic fearlessness, sense of honor and fair play, his aggressive righteousness and his intense love of country, and to inspire in them the desire to emulate his standards of life and conduct.

To further this aim, copies of a booklet containing biographical sketch of Colonel Roosevelt, together with a number of brief excerpts from his writings will be distributed to the pupils. Chapters from his books, characteristic stories of him and addresses of his having special appeal to children will be read by teachers and pupils in the commemorative exercises.

Those pupils who wish may contribute to the fund for the permanent memorial which is being raised by the association. To every school making a contribution to the fund, no matter how large or small the amount, engraved certificates 11 inches by 14 inches, suitable for framing, will be presented.

In Indiana the State Board of Education has already named October 24 to be observed in the schools throughout the state as "Americanization Day," in honor of Theodore Roosevelt. The Indiana Parent-Teacher association and the Federation of Public School Teachers are cooperating with the State Women's Committee of the Roosevelt Memorial association in obtaining a state-wide observance of the day in the schools. Both Tarkenton, George Ade and Meredith Nicholson are collaborating with Linnaeus, state superintendent of the Indianapolis schools, in preparing a suitable program for the day.

Perth Amboy, N. J.—For three years I suffered with a severe female trouble, was nervous, had backache and a pain in my side most of the time. ### ELLER THE CINCY TWIRLER

Pitcher Not Yet Worked in Series Is Moran's Choice While Fisher Who Will Likely Oppose Reds Will Benefit by Additional Day of Rest.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Rain fell heavily yesterday and soaked Comiskey park to such an extent that it was impossible to play the fifth game of the world's series between the Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago White Sox. The sun came out in the afternoon and the game will be played here today unless there is a further deluge.

The postponement was of no advantage to the visitors, as Manager Moran planned to pitch Hod Eller, who has not yet had his innings in the box, but to the bruised and battered Sox who have lost three and won one of the games played so far it was a boon, because it gave Claude Williams, who was beaten at Cincinnati last Thursday, another day of rest as Manager Gleason had intended to send him into the box yesterday.

In the series to date the Sox have scored but six runs and only one of these was of the brand known as "earned." The hard-hitting Reds, on the other hand, have accumulated 15 runs partly earned and partly profited.

The attendance for the four games was 122,650 and the total receipts $354,290. Of the receipts the players get $207,516.60; the clubs, $133,544.36; and the National commission, $38,429.04.

Five games remain to be played if the full schedule is required but Manager Moran and the Cincinnati fans believe that the full route will not have to be traversed. With a two-game lead they believe they have crushed the American leaguers into a condition where the Chicagoans cannot hope for even one more victory. On the other hand Manager Gleason asserted that he was not down-hearted. "We go best coming from behind," said he, "and you watch the Sox go to it from now on. We have had the worst of the breaks all along and I think, too, that we were over confident. That was natural for Cincinnati's supporters wanted odds even after the Reds had taken the first game. Naturally we were confident. We'll even up the series with the next two games. Cincinatti deserved to win on Saturday."

The umpires inspected the field yesterday afternoon and announced it would be in excellent condition today if there was no more rain.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Cincinnati now needs but two more games to bring the world's championship flag to the banks of the Ohio. Chief Moran's red-jacketed Nationals, leaguers defeated the Chicago White Sox Saturday, in the fourth game of the series, 2 to 0. Ring twice a wonderful game.

PLAY 7-7 TIE

Dunbar Township and West Newton
Battle Without Decision.

Dunbar Township high school and West Newton played a 7-7 tie at West Newton on Saturday. Dunbar won the toss and immediately plunged through West Newton's line for several first downs, carrying the ball to the one-yard line where West Newton held and secured the ball. In the second quarter consistent gains by Pritchard and Hensel brought a touchdown for the township boys and Pritchard kicked the goal. Neither team scored in the third quarter. It looked like a 7-0 victory for Dunbar until about five minutes before the final whistle when West Newton opened up with long forward passes, taking the ball to the two-yard line where a line pluge by Toman took it over. Painter kicked the goal.

Both teams played well despite the extreme heat.

came possessors of the ball and took it within the 20 yard line and were then penalized 15 yards.

In the second quarter Connelville put up its strongest battle, holding Peabody to one touchdown and scoring one themselves. A forward pass from the 30 yard line was received by Moore, who took it over Connelville's goal line. During the same quarter a forward pass was intercepted by Wishart who made a 14 yard gain. Wishart, in the next play, forwarded to Jones, who made a 40 yard dash and took the ball over the line.

The third quarter, Moore made a 25 yard run scoring a touchdown without much opposition from the locals.

The fourth quarter was one-sided as the weight of the Peabody team began to tell.

During the last quarter Fairgreave recovered a ball fumbled by himself which had rolled across the line.

The whole Connelville team is worth mentioning for their efforts and the strong battle they gave Peabody. Those who made an especially good showing were, Danner, Whiskey, Critchfield, Jones and Wishart.

The lineup was as follows:

Connelville Peabody

Jones L. E. Brunetti

Critchfield L. T. Gaven

Thomas L. G. Wainwright

Yaw C. Kincaid

Mountain R. G. Keller

Dalton R. T. Leese

Simple Home Remedy

Advised For Rose And Hay Fever

Anyone Can Make a Pint For Trifling Sum and Used In Time May Prevent Annual Attack

"No matter how severe your yearly attack be, its intensity can be reduced to a harmless, mildness," says a Kentucky druggist who believes from what he has seen that this simple home made remedy is a most important discovery.

He has seen the most severe and apparently uncurable cases reduced to what might be called a mild cold in twenty-four hours.

In many cases where the patient started treatment a week or ten days before the expected attack the unexpected yearly visitor failed to appear with anything like its usual intensity.

People who want to try this new treatment can make a pint in a few minutes.

Four one ounce of Mentholized Archa into a pint bottle. Then fill the bottle with water that has been boiled. Gargle daily as directed and snuff or spray the nostrils twice daily.

That's all there is to the treatment which so many sufferers have found to be a true friend.

Mentholized Archa in one ounce vials is dispensed by all the better pharmacies.

But Mrs. Delario left me but little time for observation; merely remarking that this was the scene room, she asked if I'd seen Claire and what I thought of her.

Well—I thought a great deal of her and many things about her, and while I was considering my answer Mrs. Delario propounded a question that fairly stunned me: "You think the girl could be a thief?"

"Oh, never—never in the world. What—Claire?" I cried hotly, and the picture of the high-bred girl came before me. I could as soon have thought my own sister a thief. Nevertheless I was soon at a loss to explain the episodes Mrs. Delario told me.

On the steamer, for instance, she had twice caught Claire turning over things in her—Mrs. Delario's—suitcase. Claire excused it once by saying she'd accidentally put some of her own toilet articles in it by mistake while she was too sick to notice. But what finally brought about the crisis was this: A sister had given Mrs. Delario a ten-dollar bill in payment for a reading, and she had gone hastily to her room for change, and returning had left her bedroom door ajar and a quantity of bills lying on the bureau which she hadn't stopped to put back into her purse. The moment she had shown the sister out she went back to replace her purse and found Claire in her room. Claire was in the act of closing the wardrobe door and said she was looking for her muff. And why her muff in Mrs. Delario's wardrobe?

"But did she steal any money?" I demanded, almost in fear of the reply. Mrs. Delario took some time to answer, and this is what she said: "You know I'm so fond of the child I'd rather think I made a mistake than that she robbed me. I had two five-dollar bills—a lot of twos and ones and several tens—and what I think I did was to take a five and a two—seven dollars—and rush downstairs. But what I might have done was taken the two fives—a five instead of a two—and give them to the lady. She didn't look at them. Anyway, the other five was gone."

It was this sort of thing about her that made me like Mrs. Delario so much—her willingness to excuse and to wait for final proofs of people's delinquencies. She hadn't even mentioned her suspicion of Claire; at the same time she hadn't decided that she could on no account keep the child longer in the house, the worry of looking after her was too great, and she had told Claire this and that if her father didn't arrive by Monday Claire would have to go to a boarding school for safekeeping like he did. Monsieur Delario happened to arrive at next morning and took Claire away. That was Thursday—the day before she called on me—and Claire had been with Mrs. Delario just since Monday.

Very naturally, then, in all the story I never once thought of the slipper and that Mrs. Delario might be suspecting Claire of taking it. But having, so to speak, settled Claire in saying that she had left on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Delario quickly switched the conversation on the real subject of my visit. She introduced it by saying that Lila—who was still in a boarding school near Philadelphia—was breaking down and might have to be sent abroad for treatment—she seemed to be developing spinal trouble, though the doctors here really didn't seem to know what ailed the child; and then the sentence I clearly remember was, "I'm very greatly in need of money."

I fear I must have drawn back suddenly—I actually thought she was trying to borrow of me—and she smiled and answered my unspoken words: "I don't mean I want to borrow anything. I have some property I want to dispose of. I want to sell some rubies."

"Why, Mrs. Delario, I'm not a dealer," I replied quickly.

"I know you're not—that's why I thought you could help me better than anyone else. The stones were left me by a great-aunt in France, and I may as well confess it now—they came in duty free."

"Smuggled," I interjected.

"Well, a friend brought them over and they weren't found when the baggage was examined. But don't you see that was why I could sell them at a bargain?"

"I don't know anybody who deals in smuggled gems."

"Of course—but you needn't tell that—you don't actually know how they got in—you are selling them for a friend. It's because you don't know that you can sell them better than I can. At least you wouldn't mind looking at the stones and telling me what they're worth so I'll have something to go on? I haven't an idea how valuable they are."

"Take them to Tiffany's," I suggested.

"I'm afraid to take them anywhere, to tell you the truth. Eugene took them to a place on Madison lane yesterday and the people acted so queerly. Eugene—he's very psychic—got the impression that they were going to accuse him of smuggling them or something of the kind—stealing the rubies, perhaps from them—and he put them in his pocket and ran out. He thinks he was followed, but he couldn't make sure. Don't you see how easy it would be for anyone to accuse a lone woman of theft?"

"But how would they prove anything?" I interrupted. "If the stones are yours—"

She stopped me with a bitter laugh.

"Can't you see that the mere public accusation that I'd stolen jewels would ruin me professionally? It would put me instantly under suspicion of fraud in all my dealings. Oh, you don't know; you haven't a conception of what this life means," she went on a little wildly. "You don't know the struggle just to make one's daily bread. A lawsuit would ruin me financially—I have no money to hire a lawyer to defend me."

I felt myself give in to her then, as she gave out a long O-o-h!

A friend. Yes, I'd help her in every reasonable way.

"You mustn't labor under any false impressions about me," she went on. "I have a little property—not enough to support two people—and what I earn. I live here rent-free—they pay the rent—the circle that meets here twice a week. I have the house much as a minister has his parsonage. If there were ever any scandal—if they turned me out from here—I'd be practically penniless. I couldn't make a fresh start with that hanging over me. And then my son!"

I said, "Well, get the stones and I'll look at them if you care to have me do that."

She left me with a grateful smile, but returned so quickly that I rather guessed she had the stones on her person. It was a dainty little pasteboard box she'd come back with, fastened with a common little elastic. She slipped the elastic and placed the box in my hand.

I raised the lid. I gave one look at the contents, emptied out the stones into my hand—and nearly fell off my chair!

THE STONES I HELD WERE BLOOD-RED DIAMONDS! And there were seven of them—a stone you don't see one of in a year, perhaps. Why I didn't know there were such stones in the heavens or the earth or the waters under the earth! Seven blood-red diamonds, absolutely flawless, first-water gems, and perfectly matched to the last facet, the last gleam and twinkle in their radiant depths.

I held them, almost frightened, and really didn't bear what she was saying till she remarked something about their being matched.

Matched? Well, they were matched this way: If an absolutely perfect mechanical mind with an absolutely perfect mechanical tool, working on absolutely perfect substance can be conceived, the mind and the tool, working without variation, might have produced those seven stones. Yes—I should say they were matched!

"I remember you told me once," she was prattling, "that the larger the stones the more individual they became and the harder they were to match. If they were worth five thousand dollars apiece couldn't I get—say—forty thousand dollars for the seven?"

"Forty thousand dollars!" I gasped, looking at her now for the first time since I'd looked at the stones.

An expression of disappointment crossed her face, and of chagrin too, at having committed herself before an expert—as she kindly regarded me. "Couldn't I get as much as twenty thousand for them, don't you think?" she faltered. "Aren't rubies that size worth even that?"

"Rubies!" I must have simply abouted the word at her.

"And aren't they rubies? Oh, don't tell me they're only paste!" She looked ready to cry with disappointment and mortification.

"PASTE!" I know I yelled that word so the walls echoed. "Why, woman, they're DIAMONDS!—blood-red diamonds—the most valuable stones in the world."

She clasped her hands about my arm and gave out a long "O-o-h!" Then there were forty thousand dollars at the very least!

"Mrs. Delario," I said soberly, "I can give you only a rough estimate, for those stones are far beyond my range, but in my honest opinion they are worth at least a million dollars."

Silence fell on us—my words had sort of stunned us both; for until I had spoken them aloud the full meaning of the diamonds hadn't come home to me, and that I sat there, casually holding a million dollars in my hand, it all at once seemed a solemn thing to be doing—an immense responsibility. I dropped them back in their box, put the lid on and handed them to her.

Her own first words showed the timid woman. "And I've all this right here in the house with me!"

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink while millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

nor him—he didn't steal any diamonds off me, you know—"

"Steal any diamonds?" she interrupted. "He never stole a diamond in his life. Never!"

I fancied the man shrugging as he answered. "So much the better for him! He didn't steal them—I'm sure I hope for your sake he didn't, though it looks bad, him trying to sell them to the very parties that knew all about them."

"Oh!" and I could see her clinging to the minister. She was evidently at a loss what to do.

I understood in a flash what had happened—this man, or an accomplice, was the one who had followed her son home from the Madison lane dealer's yesterday. He evidently thought her son was making headway, for he went on.

"Now see here, lady, you take it from me—the parties that are pressing this case don't care for publicity any more than you do—or your son does. It would ruin him if it got into the papers, to say nothing of his serving time for it."

"Serving time? My God!" broke from her involuntarily.

"Of course he'd serve time if it's proved on him," her visitor assured her.

She gave a sob. I was wrought up. It was all I could do to keep my place and not join her and help defy the man; but his next words held me listening.

"He'll give back the stones he showed yesterday, or tell what he's bid them, I can be this settled out of court and nobody will be the wiser—if you don't say anything. See?"

"It isn't true!" she cried. "My son never stole a cent's worth of anything in his life."

"Here's the warrant."

"Arrest him if you will, but the law will prove him innocent—if there's law in the land, and I sometimes doubt it."

"But hadn't you better talk to him first? It won't hurt to hear what he has to say, and if it can be arranged on the quiet—"

"I shall not talk to him! Do you think I would insult my son by asking him if he stole diamonds?"

Followed a silence. Then the man's voice, "Well, if you won't I suppose you won't. But you'll regret it."

"I won't."

"Then I'll have to do it myself. Which room is he sick in?"

We Offer For Public Subscription at Par Value—Twenty-Five Cents Per Share, a Limited Block of Treasury Stock of the ALLIED MINING COMPANY

CAPITALIZATION $250,000.00. PAR VALUE OF SHARES 25 CENTS EACH.

The Company Has No Preferred Stock, No Bonded Nor Mortgage Indebtedness.

The following information is taken out of the first annual report of stock holder meeting of the Allied Mining Company held at the office of the Company on the first day of July A. D. 1919.

"Six new claims were added this year to the original seven owned by the Company and are on record at the Dominion Lands Office, Manitoba, making a total of approximately 700 acres of mining property."

"Development operations have reached a point where it will be advantageous to send a technical expert to the properties and accordingly Professor Justin S. Delury, Department of Geology and Mineralogy, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, has been secured for the exclusive service of the Company until September 1st and he will spend the greater part of August actually on the property."

"The work of the property is going forward under experienced management and it is the plan to continue work without interruption until the dividend paying stage is reached and thereafter permanently."

"The Company's superintendent telegraphed to the Company on August 1st, 1919, as follows: Great excitement here, wonderful discovery not far from our claims, actually saw large samples over half gold. Boat was loaded going up with prospectors and others to make claims. Big rush anticipated from other mining centers. Never saw such ore in my life."

The Company's properties are near the shores of Twin Lake in unsurveyed territory in Northern Manitoba, as does all other recently discovered mining properties in this district. Manitoba, Canada, is rich in natural resources beyond the expectations of the most enthusiastic of the many optimists who have predicted great mineral wealth in the country to the North.

A square deal to every stockholder is the policy of the Company. The principal aim is to establish this Company on a permanent and profit-producing basis to eventually take its place along with the great producing companies whose names have become household words the world over. It is the purpose to rush operations. The policy reduces speculation to a minimum and the proposition presents an investment holding unlimited possibilities.

FAYETTE COUNTY'S QUOTA IN RED CROSS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE PLACED AT 25,226

The object of the third annual Red Cross roll call to be held throughout the United States November 2-11 is to renew all existing memberships and in addition to secure as many new members as possible in order to obtain the moral and financial indorsement of the American people for the completion of its war work and the carrying on of the great peace program of the American Red Cross. Twenty million members is the goal set for the United States and the Fayette County chapter has been given a quota of 25,226.

The purpose of the roll call is to enroll annual members at $1.00 each, and make it possible for every man, woman and child in every town, city and community throughout the United States to renew his or her membership and take as many additional memberships as they care to pay for. In Fayette county the campaign will no doubt be conducted by the establishing of booths in the different cities, towns and communities under the direction and supervision of the various branches and auxiliaries.

With the ending of actual hostilities and the rapid demobilization of our army, the majority of the American people apparently thought that the work of the Red Cross was accomplished. Most of them know little of the gigantic peace program which has been laid out—a program which will take not a year nor a decade, but which contemplates a perpetual effort towards the permanent betterment of the American people.

The principal feature of the new peace program as thus far outlined (and this is only the beginning of the possibilities for good of the American Red Cross) are as follows:

A nation-wide activity for the promotion of the public health.

A vigorous campaign for the extension of the country's nursing resources.

Extension of the Red Cross home service.

Greatly increased junior activities.

Extension of the facilities for disaster and emergency relief.

Relief measures for the victims of the war, both here and overseas.

First aid instruction.

The scope of the service of the American Red Cross beyond these points will be directed to assisting, stimulating and supplementing all legitimate movements for the preservation, promotion and improvement of the public health, and for bettering living conditions through applying and extending the principles of true neighborliness.

The activities now authorized do not complete the program of Red Cross service, which will always be a growing one. It will devote its efforts hereafter largely to the conservation of the most precious things in the world—human life and happiness. There is such a thing as continuing disaster; thousands of babies under one year of age die unnecessarily in the United States every year; it is still possible for an epidemic like the influenza to take a toll of human life five times as great as our losses in a year and a half of war; hundreds of thousands of persons die each year from wholly preventable causes. Towards the elimination of these things the peace program of the Red Cross looks.

The annual meeting of the Fayette County chapter, American Red Cross, for the election of officers and directors is Wednesday, October 23, instead of October 9th, which was announced through the press in error.

The election will be held at the chapter's headquarters, 418 Fayette Title & Trust building, Uniontown, between 10 A. M. and 4 P. M. and it is hoped that as many Red Cross members as possible throughout the county will cast a ballot on that day.

"ALL YOU CLAIM AND THEN SOME" SAYS SAM WIRT

Well Known Locomotive Engineer
Contributes Forcefully to Nervworth Praise.

Almost every day a new Ohio contribution of the kind mentioned. The following is a top-notch. Hosts of railroad people know Sam Wirt. Mark his words to Springfield's Nerv-Worth drugist:

The Troupe Drug Co.—I have been in a nervous condition for years. I am an old railroad engineer. I did not get restful sleep. My stomach and digestion in bad shape. Was constipated and have had to use physic all the time. The nervousness was so severe it affected my toes and there was a twitching sensation in them. Was in run-down condition and at my age I had to get something that would strengthen my nerves. I found it in Nerv-Worth and have built my nerve force up to normal condition and am feeling fine and on my engine every day. Nerv-Worth is certainly all its makers claim for it and then some.

THE SOISSON.

"THE TRAP"—Starring Olive Tell. The story was written by Jules Eckert Goodman and Richard Harding Davis and was produced by Universal under the direction of Frank Reicher. Jean Carson, a New York school teacher, left the comforts of her home city and went to the Klondike, there with her father, to cajole the phlegmatic Harry Gold. Two men came into her life. One was a man in every fibre of his being. The other was his brother—a blackguard. Both professed to love the girl. The decision between them was an ordeal. Then her father and Ned Fallon, the real man, went away on a prospecting trip and Steve Fallon, the brother frightened the girl into marrying him secretly. A few days after the marriage Steve came home and in a drunken rage told the girl that he had a wife in Seattle. She went back to her father's cabin to wait for his return. Dad came back, empty handed. She was afraid to tell him of her trouble. Ned returned triumphant, with a fortune in his mine. But the girl met him with downcast eyes. She evaded him. She waved aside his efforts to plead his love. Then she went away to New York, married the man she loved. Happiness was hers for six years. Then came the man who witnessed her marriage. With slander and insinuation he tried to run a course of blackmailing.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"A FAVOR TO A FRIEND"—Today's attraction, starring Emmy Wehlen, is a sparkling romance. The story is one of love and adventure, and Miss Wehlen, in the role of Mary Worthington, an heiress to her father's estate, at once becomes the center of a swiftly-moving plot involving the estate, the abduction of the dainty little lady herself, and the unique meeting with the man of her heart who is originally responsible for the exciting adventures through which she goes.

Miss Wehlen has never been better than in "A Favor to a Friend," which is an original story by Lieutenant A. Reed, directed by John Ince and personally supervised by Maxwell Karger, director general.

The entire cast as well, without exception, was excellent and included the handsome Jack Mulhall, Hugh Pay, Joseph Kilgour, Elsie Couley, Jack Miller, Jr., Harry Todd and Fred H. Warren.
